May We Never See Another Dachau

By William L. Chenery
Publisher, Collier's Weekly

Were you asking if the Seventh War Loan is necessary? Are you wondering if the United States can't win a war against the Japanese without your help?

The answer is "Yes", if not too many of us go slack, but I don't believe you would like to have it end that way.

Certainly you would not if you had been compelled to see what the War Department asked 18 editors and publishers to observe. I was one of them. I hope that never again in history do men have to look on what I saw at Buchenwald and Dachau in Germany.

In those concentration camps the Nazi herded men whose religion, race or political opinions they disliked. I saw what had happened to those men. I saw the dead and the dying and worse still those destined soon to die from hunger, disease and devilishly ingenious torture.

I remembered that the dead and the dying were men who had given or were to give their lives for their beliefs and principles.

If freedom and human dignity are worth having here or anywhere there can be no stopping until the Japanese War also is won. That war can be won only by exerting the full force of American industrial might. That means money, billions of it.

Yes, your help is needed. Buy that bond, what you can afford, today. Buy it because you care, because you wanted to do your part in the great world struggle for right and freedom.

You will want in the years ahead to remember that you did what you could to help. If you think of a prisoner in a concentration camp enduring the torture of a slow death, or of the gallant soldier in Okinawa or the sailor facing an enemy bomb, buying an E bond is a very little thing.

Patsy Ann Saunders Is Hostess To Group

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

BY JAMES PRESTON

The ground-swell of sentiment for repeal of the Johnson Act, which forbids American citizens to lend money to governments in default on debts is based largely on the theory that American investors—give full knowledge that in the past many loans to governments have not worked out favorably—should be allowed to put their money in any job-creating investment they select.

Elected to the Senate in 1916, and re-elected every six years since then, Sen. Johnson backs to the days when the United States was a debtor nation, borrowing abroad instead of lending. White-haired now and sometimes ill, tired eyes belying eyes that glint sharply through and sometimes over his glasses, the Californian symbolizes the sentiment: "America, go it alone!"

Yankee Shrewdness

Business leaders favoring repeal of the act argue that in order to solve problems left by World War II, we must rid ourselves of policies growing out of previous wars—the Johnson Act being one of those policies. The veteran California legislator doesn't agree.

The idea that Americans are shrewd enough to protect their own cash if they know all the facts regarding investments is growing in Washington. The theory that Yankee traders are easy marks seems to be going out of style.

Revolution Office Tops Proximity In Thriller

Old Cone park has been the scene of many thrilling events, but perhaps the most exciting in recent years was the thrilling softball game played there last Tuesday afternoon.

The Revolution office "Limpers," paced by the magnificent base-running of "Twinkletons" Bert Skinner, nosed out the Proximity office "Hobblers" in a close, hard-fought battle, 13-10. The lead changed on an average of twice each inning, the "Limpers" merely outlasting the "Hobblers".

The spectators had an added thrill in the third inning, when it was thought that the Graf Zeppelin had landed in the infield. When the dust cleared, it turned out to be Skinner sliding into second base for another daring steal.

Merlin Beaver, Roy Carter and Ventry Hinshaw were the heavy hitters for Revolution, while Joe Walters, Curt May and Francis Blackwood took the slugging honors for Proximity.

The stands were overflowing, figuratively speaking, with a bevy of beauties from both offices cheering for their heroes.

The line-up for Proximity was: Archie Baynes, 3b; Fred Newnam, ss; Ed Chambers, c; Wallace Branton, rf; Joe Walters, 1b; Francis Blackwood, cf; Glenn McDonald, cf; Carrie Wyrick, lf; Curt May, p; and Leon Stone, pinch hitter. Revolution: Ventry Hinshaw, 1b; Roy Carter, 3b; Joe Wrenn, ss; Merlin Beaver, cf; Bert Skinner, rf; Elbert Powers, lf; T. Ward, c; Roy Strickland, 2b; Tommy

Mrs. Craven Dies After Long Illness

Long Time Resident Of Local Community

Funeral for Mrs. Willie Craven, 43, of 1502 15th street, was held Saturday at 4 p.m. at the Church of God, State street, with Rev. H. T. Durden, pastor, officiating. Mrs. Crave died at 10:20 a.m. Thursday at her home after an illness of one year.

Life long resident of Greensboro, she was a member of the Church of God. Surviving are her husband, Kenneth C. Craven; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keck; one son, Kenneth D. Craven; a brother, J. W. Keck Jr.; four sisters, Mrs. Ethel Talley, Mrs. H. L. Lewey, Mrs. William M. Kelly and Mrs. Price Miller all of Greensboro.

To the People of this Community

Even if the war ended this very moment you still would be doing the best thing for yourself and your family by investing the biggest amount in War Bonds today you have ever saved for future spending.

From a strictly self-interest viewpoint you cannot afford to fritter away war wages in a market of scarce goods. New autos, new homes, new appliances, new radios, will not be coming off production lines instantly the last shot is fired by one of your tired relatives or friends. War Bonds will make wonderful peace-time ammunition when they mature $4 for every $3 you store away now.

P. S. Just to bring you out of that postwar dream, take another look at the headlines. There's still a war on. You and your money are needed to beat the Japs. The bonds you buy today are WAR BONDS. There'll be time 10 years hence for you to think of them as PEACE BONDS.

Sgt. Allen C. Heffner Awarded Silver Star

Heroic Action Insures Advance Of His Platoon

Allen C. Heffner, T.Sgt., Co. L, Infantry regiment, has been awarded the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action against an armed enemy of the United States on March 4, 1945.

While advancing toward Kerschenback, Germany, Sergeant Heffner's platoon encountered intense enemy machine gun fire. It is reported that with admirable courage, he crawled forward and successfully knocked out the machine gun with rifle fire, killing one German and wounding another.

The platoon continued working forward until halted by another enemy machine gun. Heffner again advanced fearlessly in the face of fire, threw a hand grenade and successfully knocked out the second machine gun. His heroic actions insured the advance of his platoon and the accomplishment of its mission.

Mankind's Greatest Need Today

The future is uncertain. That is one statement which cannot cause much of an argument. Similarly, it can be stated that the thinking and behavior of human beings will determine what will happen in this nation and throughout the world. That statement provokes thought and leaves room for discussion, as the question can be raised as to the part Divine Providence will play in the years to come.

A Baptist minister, located at a southern college community during World War I, preached a strong sermon on the war and world conditions. His text was "Why doesn't God kill the Kaiser and end the war." That deep-thinking, eloquent minister of the Gospel brought to his youthful congregation the significant thought that God's will on earth must be done by people and that if He were to do finite things, regardless of their need, He would cease to be Infinite.

We subscribe wholeheartedly to that thought. Human beings must clear up the terrible mess human beings have wrought. How can mankind of the present and the future bring to the world peace and harmony? The answer to that question will challenge the best brains of all people. Fortunately the way to peace has been marked and illuminated for all people. Unfortunately, however, at least an overwhelming majority of the people of the world must see and follow that way or else chaos will continue to threaten the very existence of a material world.

Religion must play a dominant part in the affairs of people but not as a physical agent or a material controlling force or as a faction of partisanship. Religion, if it can help mankind and the world save itself from destruction, must become a true religion, a pure religion. It must become the Religion of the Prince of Peace. It must be the kind of religion those brave Chaplains of all creeds have been bringing to the boys on the battle fronts. Those boys facing eternity have glimpsed a religion such as is rarely seen in the churches back home. The religion that brings comfort to them while facing death contains no intolerance, no discriminations except between right and wrong, no distortion of spirituality. Those boys come face to face with pure religion. It does not fight their battles or feed or clothe them. It is not finite or physical. It is spiritual. It brings them enlightenment. It gives them spiritual strength and courage. It fortifies their souls.

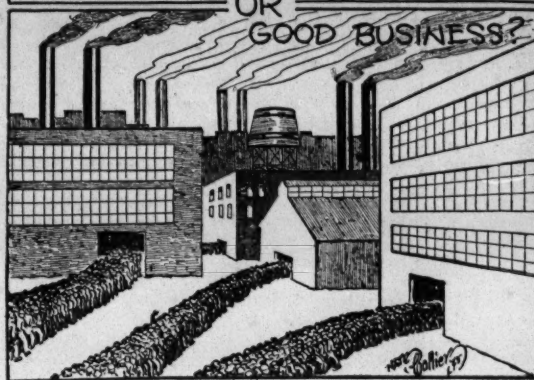

Our churches are today challenged to bring to the world true, pure religion. The soul of the world must be fortified. Spiritual enlightenment is, no doubt, mankind's greatest need today. Certainly we must have spiritual strength and courage if we are to build for a permanent and lasting peace.

Yes, mankind's fate on earth will be determined by the behavior of mankind, but we can secure a Spiritual Guidance, without which the future will be dismal.

This terrible war we are now fighting has convinced most people that another war would completely destroy civilization. We have been truly warned. Let's look back—were we not likewise warned in 1918? Our Heavenly Father is not going to prevent wars. We can find the way through spiritual enlightenment. It will be a forerunner to mankind's ultimate success.

Religion has not failed. True religion cannot fail. What the churches need to concern themselves with is whether they have been truly religious in their conceptions and in their activities. Have they fully interpreted the religion of their Heavenly Father or have they permitted human limitations, narrowness, arrogance, prejudices, expediency and ignorance to distort the spirit and teachings of the Almighty.

The principles of real religion are indeed broad, fair and tolerant. They not only can be but are the sole basis for real brotherhood of man and permanent peace. The churches of the world are indeed challenged by the times. If they are to survive and the world is to have peace, they must meet this challenge.

Reading & Writing

by Edwin Seaver & Robin McKenna

Twenty-three-year-old Sergeant Bill Mauldin, cartoonist for Stars and Stripes, looks a little like a sophomore at some American Junior High, but his drawings of the war are likely to live as long as the history books. His book, "Up Front," a collection of cartoons with some thirty thousand words of explanatory text, is a Book-of-the-Month Club selection for July. One of the cartoons in his book has just won the Pulitzer Prize.

Bill Mauldin has been with the combat infantry in Sicily, in the mountains of Italy, and on the beaches of Southern France. He has been under fire in the slit trenches and the rain and the mud with our front-line soldiers, and he has been wounded. He knows war for the dirty mess it is—a nightmare of terror, dirt, and misery. He also knows what the dogface thinks about the Germans, officers, rear areas, clothing, weapons, sanitation, food and death.

His cartoon characters, Willie and Joe, are "old soldiers," men who have been fighting for more than two years, who are tired of war, who hate it, but who are ready to go anywhere their outfit is going. Their faces are unshaven. They wear damp, soggy fatigue suits. Their shoulders sag under rain-soaked combat packs. But make no mistake: they are heroes.

The story is told of a publisher of a daily newspaper in Texas, who received the prospectus of Bill's cartoons from the company the syndicates them, with a few reprinted drawings attached. He looked them over and then dictated a letter, saying he did not think the cartoons typified the true American fighting youth. That night at home, he read a letter from his paratrooper son who said, "Don't let them tell you, Dad, that isn't the way we look. We look that way and we feel that way. If you get a chance, use Bill's cartoons to show what we are really like."

One of the complaints of the soldiers is that when they take their three-day furlough in town, after months of combat duty, they're likely to run into bright and shining MPs who bowl them out because their bearing is not military. "He's right, Joe," Willie says to his friend in one cartoon, "when we ain't fightin' we should ack like sojers."

The men up front understand this crack, but others might miss it. Sergeant Mauldin tells of a rear echelon colonel who took it straight. "He wanted, so help me, to take the original drawing and have thousands of huge poster copies printed. He planned to plaster them on every wall and telephone pole in Italy, as an admonition to GIs to 'ack like sojers.'"

The simple and expressive text, in which Bill Mauldin tells the circumstances which lead to the creation of each cartoon, will prevent civilian readers from making similar mistakes.

"Wanted To Get The Hell Out Of There—"

By Ben Hibbs
Editor, Saturday Evening Post

"When you come out of one of these pest holes you feel that you will never be clean again. You want to take a bath in chlorine. You know that as long as you live you'll never quite be able to get the stink of the place out of your nostrils, nor forget the scenes of abject misery you have seen."

"The first reaction of any decent human being to a spectacle like this is, of course, one of incredible shock. Then you want to get the hell out of there and go where you can breathe some clean air. Specifically, you want to go back to America as fast as your big four-motored plane will carry you, to a land where human life still has dignity and value."

Upon arriving she found that her husband was being transferred to another camp. Mrs. Whitt returned to her home here to be with her parents indefinitely. Misses June and Carol Graham of Lincoln returned with her for a short visit.

Mrs. Thomas Leon Bass with her small son, Thomas Leon III, has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rook on Piedmont street.

The Girls Summer club met at the Welfare cottage Friday afternoon. The meeting opened with the First Psalm read by Sue Reid after which the group sang "Into My Heart". Joan House read a Poem and Barbara Oldham sang "Sweet and Low". "My Faith Looks Up To Thee" was sung by Minnie Jean Welch, accompanied at the piano by Peggy May. At the close of the meeting a stunt was given by Peggy May with Barbara Oldham winning the prize. The program closed with all singing "Battle Hymn of the Republic". During the business it was decided to have the next meeting at Park Springs. Each member to bring a picnic lunch.

The regular meeting of the Community club was held Friday night with Mrs. C. B. Thomason and Miss Virginia Wynne joint hostesses. Miss Wynne told a story "Oh Ye of Little Faith", after which she and Mrs. Thomason directed games with prizes going to Miss Ruby Woodard, Dorothy Cates and Mrs. Mable Wyrick. The President, Mrs. Paul Waynick presided over the business session. The Chaplain, Mrs. Walter Allread, read the 23rd Psalm followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated by the group. The next meeting will be an outdoor meeting at the home of Mrs. J. H. Kime and Mrs. Elizabeth Draper.

George F. Dabbs Rites Conducted

Funeral was held Monday afternoon at the home on Church street extension for George Fitch Dabbs, 59, who died Saturday after a stroke of paralysis. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery, Spray.

Native of Caswell county, Mr. Dabbs had lived in Greensboro for 20 years and worked at Proximity Manufacturing company until ill health forced him to retire several years ago. He was a member of the Hillsdale Primitive Baptist church.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Viola Tibbott Dabbs; two sons, Jack Dabbs, Hillsboro, and Sgt. George Dabbs, Cherry Point; two daughters, Mrs. Winfred Welborn and Mrs. Ike Moore, both of Greensboro; four brothers, Steve Dabbs, Salisbury; Felix Dabbs, Burlington; Jule Dabbs, Schoolfield, Va.; and John Dabbs, Ruffin; three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Fowler and Mrs. Dora Strader, Ruffin, and Mrs. Mina Smith, Danville, Va., and three grandchildren.

THIS BUSINESS OF LIVING

BY SUSAN THAYER

Don't Take Them for Granted
The other day I saw a woman buy a can of unrationed something or other and as she and her small son left the store I heard the little boy say incredulously, "With no points?"

I thought about that, and I wished I could get hold of that child, and all the other youngsters who were born into a warring world. I wished I could say, "Look. Ration points are only for the war. Some day—quite soon, we hope—we'll be able to buy meat and butter and canned peaches and everything without points at all, only money."

It is terribly important for our children to grow up understanding that ration points, and other war-time restrictions, are not a normal part of their lives.

When anything begins to be taken

Prevent These Atrocities—Ever

By Norman Chandler
Ed.-Pub., Los Angeles Times

When Gen. Dwight Eisenhower invited a group of American editors and publishers to crisscross France and Germany between April 24 and May for granted, it begins to take root, and we don't want any wartime regulations to put down roots in America.

7, we flew abroad wondering if the atrocity stores had been exaggerated.

We found that the actual sights in such political prison camps were worse than any account we had read.

At Buchenwald, near Weimar, extermination was accomplished by starvation, hard work, abuse, beatings, tortures and incredibly crowded sleeping conditions.

We saw the "medical experiment building" where new toxins and anti-toxins were tried out on prisoners and the victims actually served as "guinea pigs" in vivisections.

At Dachau, near Munich, we saw many open box cars loaded with dead prisoners' bodies. Lying on the ground were the bodies of 146 who died the day before we arrived.

A glance at this horribly revolting scene explained why the prisoners themselves clubbed to death 18 of the S.S. guards when they heard our troops were coming. It told why our boys shot and killed 50 more of the S.S. barbarians themselves.

Those shots can never bring back the tens of thousands of French, Poles, Hungarians, Yugoslavs, Belgians, Russians, Dutch, Austrians, Italians, Czechs and anti-Franco Spaniards whom the Nazis exterminated by starvation, gas and hanging.

My hope is that the 7th War Loan may be oversubscribed promptly to speed the end of this war everywhere and we may clamp down controls to prevent a repetition of these atrocities ever—anywhere.

Buy War Bonds for little Johnnie and Mary while they are in the first grade and they'll make college that much easier.

Urges End Of Price Control After V-J Day

Production And Jobs Depend Upon It, Says Manufacturers' Head

If price control stays six months after V-J day, "business and industry cannot be free to function for the best interests of the nation," according to Ira Mosher, Southbridge, Mass., businessman, and president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Our first objective is immediate reorganization, after victory, of the nation's productive machinery for maximum employment, Mr. Mosher says.

"The only cure for any inflation lies in production to the point where there are more goods than idle dollars to bid for them in the open market," he declared recently, adding:

Fundamental Economics
"We shall not get that sort of production, nor the jobs it creates, unless prices make possible the payment of fair wages, cover manufacturing costs, and provide some return for the person willing to invest capital in enterprise."

"That is simply fundamental economics in a free, competitive enterprise system."

Other immediate objectives listed by Mr. Mosher are return of our fighting

Gay Frocks From Feed Sacks Are Now Vogue

Farmers' wives are grateful to manufacturers of farm feeds these days—for providing them with attractive dress materials.

Faced with a shortage of burlap for bags, feed manufacturers began some time ago to use sacks of gay cotton print. Rural housewives were soon making them into house dresses.

Bag manufacturers, quick to sense this trend, are now selecting their prints with considerable taste. They obligingly stamp their brand names with water colors, which wash off easily. So farm women have taken over the buying of stock foods. They have to, to match the dress designs they have on hand. Bag makers question whether the old-fashioned burlap sack will ever regain its place.

men to a productive place in business, agriculture or industry, and the prospect of exchanging our role as "the arsenal of democracy" for that of "the granary of the globe."

"If peace is to endure, we must share our strength to help a shattered Europe rebuild its cities and feed its peoples," he said.

There's A Past In Your Future

Next week will be time to relax for most of us. Lots of good stories—that we hope to hear later—will be made next week. Yes Sir! We'll hear about the "big one that got away," "what that cop said," "the worst sun-burn anybody ever had" and lots more. Some of us will stay home because travel is difficult, and some of us will take off on worn tires or in crowded busses to make the best of a bad situation.

Each of us in his chosen way will get away from his job. Not that we don't like our jobs, you know, we just want a change. So don't talk shop to us next week. Its our vacation.

But we shall be back the second week in July with tall tales and a terrible tan (we hope). Yep, there's a tawny past in our near future. And we'll be seeing you. So long! And a pleasant week to you all.

"Not enough, Excellency," replied the dealer. "You will have to pay at least eight pounds."

"Very well," agreed the Englishman. "But make sure it's a good one."

At the door the trader hesitated. He suddenly seemed a little uncertain of himself.

"Well," demanded the Englishman, "what's the trouble now?"

"Tell me Excellency," implored the merchant, "just what is a dachshund?"

Many Children Receive Social Security Benefits

Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefits are now being paid every month to about 875 boys and girls under 18, who live in the Greensboro area. In the whole state of North Carolina there are some 13,500 youngsters who receive these monthly payments as provided by the Social Security Act for children under age 18, of deceased wage earners. In many cases the mother also gets benefits.

W. L. O'Brien, manager of the Greensboro office of the Social Security Board, said that the widow of an insured worker, regardless of age, is eligible for benefits if she has in her care her children, stepchildren, or adopted children under age 18. She may apply for her benefits at the same time that she claims payments for the children.

Monthly benefits are payable also, for the children, stepchildren, or adopted children under age 18, of a retired worker who is receiving monthly payments of Social Insurance. Application for the children's benefits may be made at the time that the parent files his own claim.

The wage earner who has reached age 65, or the survivor of a deceased

FEAR THIS

Political developments in England this summer have made a show, profitable for Americans to watch. Peace in Europe is really felt in England; terror and bloodshed ceased for a time—for a long time we hope. Britain's post-war problems are upon her and they are almost exactly like ours will be when our war is over in the Pacific. There is however one big difference.

The difference lies in what the working people think. British labor is socialistic, in large part: American labor is not. The British workers don't think they fared very well under the system in which private capital owned the factories and private management operated them in so-called competition. English laborers figure they would be better off if the government owned everything.

Workers in America still favor the system of free enterprise. Dominant-wage earner who has any reason to believe that he or she is eligible for payments of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance should call at the nearest office of the Social Security Board and talk with the manager or his assistant. If it appears that benefits are payable, the claimant will be given help (if it is requested) in filling out his papers and in obtaining any evidence that may be required in connection with his claim. The Greensboro office which serves the counties of Guilford, Alamance, Rockingham and Caswell, is located at 913 Guilford Building.

ly, our labor is in favor of open competition. The reason is that working people in America see how they have fared all right with private enterprise. Labor leaders express themselves freely in favor of capitalism. Our workers probably will not turn against the American system since it has not turned against them.

Nobody has the working people of either country fooled. They have the truth in both cases. In England, labor has had a pretty shabby deal in America the worker has lived well. The important question is this: British workers oppose capitalism and American workers favor it—can it be possible that they are talking about the same thing?

Have Same Name

Prior to World War II, the economic system in Britain was called private enterprise—same as in America. More-over the two were quite a little alike, at first glance, except that wages on this side of the ocean were high and American workers lived more than twice as well as the British workers, trade for trade. The difference, was that private enterprise in Britain was not free.

Private enterprise in England was hog-tied. Competition there was not actually open. Wasteful monopolies operated within the law. Private business concerns were fenced in with legal restraints on this and government restrictions on that. What they had was government-bossed private enterprise. Business men couldn't make money and therefore couldn't pay their workers.

Socialistic Labor

Working as hard as they could, British workers couldn't earn enough to live well. They needed new tools and modern methods so they could produce more; so their employers could pay better wages, but the employers couldn't buy better tools. They were so restricted that they couldn't make any money. Result: Labor unions formed a socialist party and grabbed the government.

The same thing can happen here. America can keep free private enterprise and the prosperity that goes with it. With prosperity and progress, American firms can pay their workers well. But silly restrictions and heavy taxes can choke our profits. Without profits there will be no new tools, no progress, no better wages. Unhappy workers bring socialism. Socialism, nowhere in the world, has brought wages half as high as America now enjoys.

An Inch In A Pinch

Some 44,000 disabled men and women were returned to employment in 1944, the Disabled American Veterans report, the first full year under the federal-state joint rehabilitation program. The program is under the direction of Paul V. McNutt, head of the War Manpower Commission.

The returning soldier expects to find things as near normal as when he went away. Mighty Seventh War Loan Bonds held by their owners will help to keep it so.
